Congratulations, MGT3907 students. This semester is almost finished and you’ve learned much.

News of Interest

Here’s the MGT3907 news of interest for your upcoming studying and planning:

- Check attendance weekly. Most debarred students will be notified by email of debarment at the beginning of Week 14. A few new debarred students will be notified at the end of Week 14.

- All short reports must be submitted to Report Copying Check before the final exam.

- The online Presentation Survey is open now. All online surveys must be completed before the final exam. Here is the link to the survey:

  Survey results will be published no later than when the unapproved, unofficial grades are published. A notice will appear on the homepage.

- During the exam period and after, be sure to check your email (including ABAC email) every day, including the spambox, in case an email is sent regarding some problem with the Suvey, Report Copying Check, or whatever. No adjustments will be made after grades are final except by the formal university appeal procedure.

Unofficial, Unapproved Final Grades

It’s difficult to predict exactly when unofficial, unapproved final grades will be determined and published--because of all the checking--but we may estimate around one month after the exam.
A notice on http://mgt3907.com and an email (if you are registered at mgt3907.com) will inform you when you may check your unofficial, unapproved final course grade on the website if you are registered.

You will have only one week or less to check; after that, your login and personal information must be deleted from mgt3907.com to prepare for next semester. Teachers will NOT send your grades to you by email, so please do not ask. You can see your unofficial grade only on the website and only during the one-week or less checking period.

After that, you will see your official grade when it is published by Registration.

Good luck on the final exam and in the future from the teachers of MGT3907!
